Assignment
Due August 4

To practice preparing your paper, please write the introduction and methods sections. The introduction should include general background information on the field as well as the hypothesis and objectives of your study. Try to make it as complete as possible and be sure to include references. The methods section does not need to include the methods for every experiment that you will eventually be writing up, but should have one or two protocols in detail (i.e. with materials, specific equipment, citations).

Please print TWO copies of your paper and bring to class on August 4 or email your paper to Jennifer Patterson at jp98@u.washington.edu by 5PM on August 3 (note this is the day before class). If you use email, put your last name in the title so that the papers can be easily distinguished.

This exercise is designed to allow you to practice preparing your paper as well as practice reviewing papers written by others. The class on August 4 will be spent giving peer reviews of each other’s papers. Bring a red (or other color) pen.
